Some people fight daily battles with their dental health. In many cases, the pain and discomfort are minute-by-minute reminders that something is amiss. Yet due to financial concerns or childhood fears of the dentist—complete with mental images of harsh lighting, cold exam rooms and medicinal smells— people will ignore their condition and delay dental treatment for years, even decades. After all, no news is good news. Right?

The pathway to healing seems long and arduous for some patients. For those individuals, Dr. Christine Hopkins and the team at Advanced Dental Center simplify the journey toward complete restoration.

HEALING SMILES

Every day, Dr. Christine Hopkins changes lives by customizing dental plans for each patient in a manner that is completely respectful of his or her life, budget, comfort level and long-term dental health.

“It’s the way we pay special attention to how the patient feels, instead of just treating the problem, that makes all the difference,” said Dr. Christine Hopkins.

Dr. Hopkins achieved a level of education that surpasses 98 percent of all dentists in the United States. An award-winning graduate from the nation’s top dental school, Dr. Hopkins elected to attend three additional years of advanced education in order to become a prosthodontist. As a prosthodontist, she possesses a deep understanding about the complex structure of the mouth and jaw. Combined with her knowledge in other disciplines, including orthodontics and oral surgery, Dr. Hopkins is able to treat the most difficult cases by coordinating patient treatments that involve several providers. Keeping everyone on the same page goes a long way in patient comfort and in achieving flawless results.

Patients find the most state-of-the-art, precision technology available for diagnosis, education, treatment and cosmetic design at Advanced Dental Center. In addition, Dr. Hopkins has a rare, intuitive artistry that compliments these modern tools. By meticulously planning and designing the type, shape and shade of the teeth that fit each unique patient, Dr. Hopkins creates a gorgeous, sparkling smile—asmile so incredible, one patient announced that the best picture she had ever taken in her life was the “after” snapshot Dr. Hopkins took for her patient file.

Advanced Dental Center doesn’t look like a typical dental office. From the smooth curves of the walls to the elegant décor, visitors experience a relaxing, comfortable environment. The entire team focuses on offering a personal experience. For many patients, it’s the little details that make all the difference—like a cold drink to enjoy while waiting, or the DVDs available in the treatment rooms.

“It’s the way we pay special attention to how the patient feels, instead of just treating the problem, that makes all the difference,” said Dr. Hopkins.

TRANSFORMING LIVES

Dr. Hopkins knows that all of the education and expertise in the world means nothing if you don’t care about people. She chose her career in dentistry and prosthodontics because of the opportunity to develop relationships with patients. Through those relationships, Dr. Hopkins and her dental team have an impact on the community that goes far beyond the walls of Advanced Dental Center.

“As a young student, I was interested in art and I loved creating with my hands. I also loved music and considered a career as a musician,” she said. “Now, I participate in programs that bring music and arts to our community.”

Several years ago, that community impact got a little bigger, touching the lives of women everywhere. Because of their close relationships with some very special patients whose lives have been affected by breast cancer, Dr. Hopkins, her team and patients of ADC formed “Team Smile” and invited patients to run with them in the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure.

This year, Team Smile became a top 100 donor for the Dallas area event, raising over $3,600. Eight patients joined the dental team in running in the event and dozens contributed to the cause. Each year, more people find themselves getting involved in their community through the opportunities provided by Dr. Hopkins and Advanced Dental Center—a trend Dr. Hopkins hopes to continue.

Adult patients of all ages with a variety of dental needs have discovered the ideal solution with Dr. Hopkins and her team. With services that include tooth whitening, veneers, crowns and dental implants, you too can experience a dramatic change in your smile. More importantly, you will enjoy a comfortable dental experience. Schedule your new patient consultation at 972-781-0209 or find more information at SmilesByADC.com.
